URI Alumni Launch Campaign; Supports College Referendum

URI alumni have launched their campaign in behalf of the two state referendum questions by underwriting the cost of a series of newspaper advertisements and by sending letters asking for support of the referendum to all candidates for election to General Assembly.

John M. Baxter, president of the URI alumni association, sent similar letters to Senators Pell and Pastore who are expected to make frequent appearances on public platforms. He also sent them to the more than 6,000 URI alumni living in Rhode Island. The letters request them to help stimulate the interest and solicit the support of their friends and neighbors.

Special alumni committees have been formed to promote the referendum questions and to assist in scheduling speakers from the university at local meetings.

Thomas V. Faliglia, URI director of alumni affairs, stated that alumni have already arranged about 30 speaking engagements throughout the state.

Leaflets, outlining the items and stressing the fact that nearly 80 per cent of the funds being sought by the state colleges in the referendum will be paid solely from University income, are included in alumni mailings. URI Patron's Association, a group of parents of URI students, past and present, and interested individuals have paid for the 75,000 leaflets.

Notte Supports Bond Issue In Address to URI Students

Governor John A. Notte Jr. endorsed the URI-RIC referendum bond issues in a campaign speech on campus last Tuesday evening. "We are asking the people of Rhode Island to support the twenty million dollar referendum which will not cost the taxpayer a cent", the Governor said at a coffee hour sponsored by URI's Young Democrats.

The $20,000,000. bill will be used to finance the construction of housing, dining and other auxiliary services and will be completely self-liquidating.

The governor also supported the $6,500,000. bill which will be used to replace the URI Extension Building in Providence as well as finance the construction of new academic buildings at URI and RIC.

In other topics covered in his campaign talk, the governor, in response to a student question, said he was "not opposed" to the controversial proposition of public aid to private schools. He said, "I personally believe that there is an obligation on the state to make sure all of its children get an education." He pointed out, however, that constitutionality must be decided by the courts.

Governor Notte charged that his opponent, Rep. John Chafee of Warwick, was conducting his campaign in a "negative manner". "My opponent, I think, is disturbed because no new taxes were imposed," he said.

The governor cited accomplishments of his tenure of office which he said included: 15,000 more people working than when he took office, 24 new industries, a raise in the minimum wage, and average weekly paycheck of $83.45, and millions of dollars more for city and town education.

The Providence Journal, which recently supported Mr. Chafee, was denounced by the governor because "they didn't even wait for either party to announce its platform." He referred to the Journal building as "that white tower on Fountain Street" and further chided the Journal by saying, "you won't hear me say that my opponent is a nephew of Henry Chafee, a director of The Providence Journal."

In a question and answer session held after the speech, Governor Notte fielded questions on such topics as: the mass exodus of college graduates supposedly leaving the state, fair housing, night racing.

After-Game Party Planned by Alumni

All URI alumni are invited to an "After-Game" Party following the Brown game on Saturday, Oct. 22.

The party, sponsored by the Greater Providence Alumni Club, will be held in the Commodore Room of Johnson's Hummocks Restaurant where dancing will begin at 5 p.m.

The Alumni Club has invited all URI undergraduates and their dates to attend this function.

JFK's Speech Prompts Raid

Four hundred rather over-zealous male students raided URI's women dormitories last Monday night, shortly after President Kennedy announced that the United States will impose new restrictions on Cuba.

The university's six women's dormitories were barraged by the students a few minutes after the end of the President's nationwide radio and television address on the Cuban crisis.

Although the students failed to gain entrance to any of the housing units, they caused quite a commotion. Spectators said personal art-

Campus Straw Vote Tomorrow at Union

A straw vote will be held at URI tomorrow to poll student opinion on the upcoming state elections November 6. The balloting will be held from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the lobby of the Memorial Union.

The votes will be counted by members of the Sachems and Blue Key as returns come in and the results will be published in next week's Beacon.

In order to be eligible to vote, one must be an undergraduate student at URI and a resident of Rhode Island. The voter must present his identification card which will be punched to prevent duplicate voting.

Students will be asked for vote for each candidate individually or a party's whole slate. Ticket-splitting will also be allowed.

The Republican Party's candidates are John F. Kennedy for congressional representative from the second district, Gordon Butler for representative from the first district, John H. Chafee for governor, Joseph H. O'Donnell Jr. for lieutenant governor, Alice N. DeSaint for secretary of state, Arthur N. Votolato for attorney general, and Frank N. Nunes for general treasurer.

On the Democratic side, the candidates are: John E. Fogarty for representative from the second congressional district, Ferdinand St. Germain for representative from the first district, John A. Notte Jr. for governor, Edward P. Gallogly for lieutenant-governor, August P. La France for secretary of state, J. Joseph Nugent for attorney general and Raymond H. Hawksley for general treasurer.

Students can also express their opinion on two Rhode Island constitutional amendments proposed and approved at the last session of the state general assembly. One article is concerned with legislative compensation and the second deals with the continuity of government.

The two referendums concerned with expansion at URI and Rhode Island College will also be on the ballot. One calls for a sum of $20,000,000. and another allows the total spending of $6,500,000.

Display Judging Subject of IFC Committee Investigation

The URI Interfraternity Council has established a committee to look into the system of Homecoming display judging and the weekend program as a whole. The council decided to form the committee at its regular meeting last Monday night.

According to IFC president Tony Masso of Chi Phi, the two-man investigating committee, composed of Frank Cook of Sigma Chi and Curt Congdon of Phi Kappa Theta, was formed to alleviate confusion which resulted this year when some fraternities took weeks deliberating whether to enter display competition.

"A definite pattern governing display competition and judging should be agreed upon by next year so the confusion is not repeated," said Masso.

In other business taken up at Monday's session, the council voted to support the URI Student Senate's resolution calling for the re-institution of an Honors Convocation with the stipulation that it be made compulsory.

Letters expressing the IFC's support will be sent to President Horn, Dean Quinn, and the president of the Student Senate.

The council safety committee has instituted an inspection program for all fraternity housing units. Representatives of the houses are requested to pick up check lists

Homecoming Day Draws 7,000

Susan Mandell Crowned Queen

Blue skies and balmy temperatures pervaded the URI campus last weekend as thousands of visitors, alumni, faculty and students enjoyed the university's annual Homecoming weekend.

A rally on Friday night and the stuffing of fraternity lawn displays started the weekend into full swing.

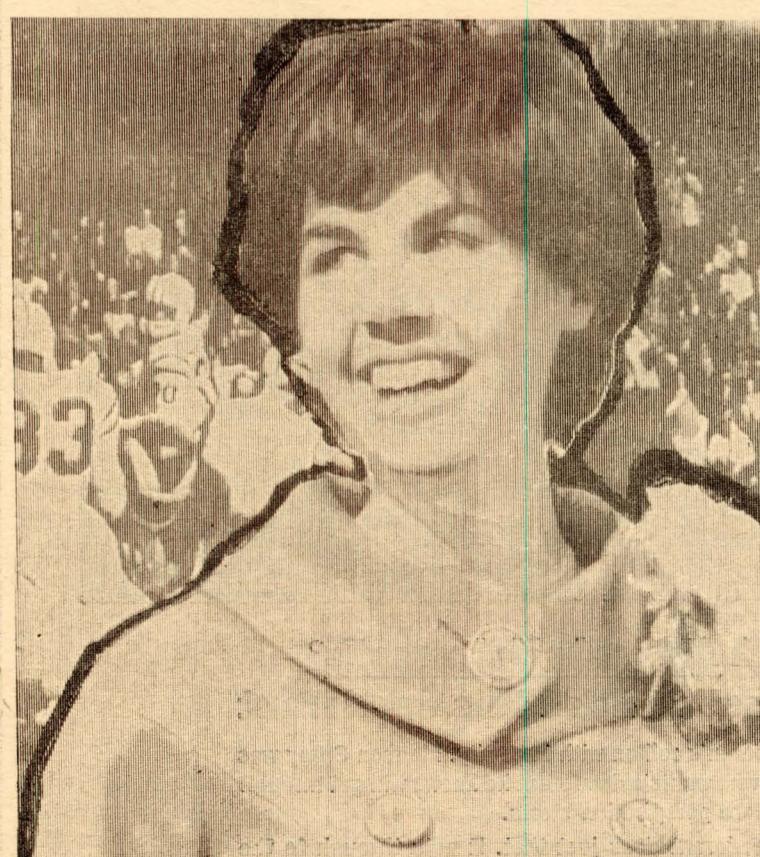

On Saturday the URI Rams met the University of Massachusetts Redmen before a crowd of approximately 7,000.

A motorcade of queen candidates paraded around Meade Field before the game. A float supporting the $20,000,000 URI-RIC referendum was an added highlight to the parade.

During the half-time Susan Mandell was crowned Homecoming Queen by last year's queen, Maureen Russo. Miss Mandell, a senior in elementary education, is a member of Sigma Delta Tau.

Chi Phi fraternity was awarded a trophy for first place in the men's lawn displays. Theta Chi won second place and Beta Psi Alpha, third place.

The URI Band, under the direction of Donald Burns, presented

Rally Fires Evoke Caution

Larry Hickey, chairman of the football rally committee, has asked housing units to take extra safety precautions in building floats for the Friday night parades.

Two rally floats were completely destroyed by flames when they were ignited by torches carried by the celebrators during last Friday night's parade.

Mr. Hickey said, "More serious consequences could have occurred if a man secured to the display had not been pulled off in time." He warned against having anyone secured in any way to a display.

Carmen Valles, moderator of Sacheins, will present rally trophies to the top two housing units in the men's and women's division for the best participation on the steps of Green Hall following the rally next Friday night. This will be URI's last rally of the year.

Judges selected from members of the administrative staff viewed the first two rallies and their decisions have been tabulated by members of the rally committee.

After-Game Party Planned by Alumni

All URI alumni are invited to an "After-Game" Party following the Brown game on Saturday, Oct. 22.

The party, sponsored by the Greater Providence Alumni Club, will be held in the Commodore Room of Johnson's Hummocks Restaurant where dancing will begin at 5 p.m.

The Alumni Club has invited all URI undergraduates and their dates to attend this function.

Model UN Planned for Campus; Fishman to Serve as Sec-Gen.

Charles Fishman, a URI student from Providence, has been elected by the Debate Council to serve as Secretary General of the third annual Model United Nations to be held on campus Wednesday, November 14.

The three resolutions which will be debated on will be decided this week by vote of a special committee. All fraternities, sororities, and housing units are encouraged to nominate delegates to represent Foster R. Spofford, a Boston and Maine Railroad official, will speak to URI students majoring in government and business next Tuesday morning at 10 in Independence Auditorium.

Mr. Spofford, assistant to the vice president of railroad operations, will discuss railroad common carrier regulations.

Spofford is prominent in New England railroad activities, past president of the Bridge and Building Association, and an active member of the Massachusetts Society of Professional Engineers and the Boston Chamber of Commerce.

The railroad executive will appear at URI under the auspices of the Railroad Community Committee of New England.

This year's model UN will differ from previous ones in that the topic will be placed before the assemblage for open debate and, therefore, eliminate the time consuming opening speeches.

In acting on reports by some member housing units that looting occurred during Homecoming weekend, the IFC decided to alert the campus police in the future whenever most fraternity houses hold parties to prevent a repetition of the thefts.

The council will resume work on a special tax committee formed last semester to investigate student taxation on campus. The committee includes Ralph Gonnella of Theta Chi, Curt Congdon of Phi Kappa Theta, Bob Levine of Alpha Epsilon Pi, and Paul Hansen of Sigma Phi Epsilon.

"More and more youngsters are and can be absorbed in Rhode Island industry," he said when asked about the departure of college graduates from the state. He said the talk of their leaving is more of a generalization than a specific fact.

When asked about fair housing, he said the fair housing bill that had passed the Senate and House under his administration was killed by a group of real-estate lobbyists.

On night racing he professed no personal interest but said it helped defray taxes and could be likened to the liquor and cigarette tax as a revenue producer.

When Notte was criticized for the delay in construction of the library last year by a student wearing a Chafee button, the governor spoke of "loaded questions" and did not directly answer the question. The young Democrat Club extended an invitation to the Young Republicans to attend this meeting.

Divinity Scholar to Speak

Prof. Krister Stendahl of the Harvard Divinity School will speak on "The Bible and the Nuclear Age" tomorrow night at a combined meeting of the URI Canterbury Club and Christian Association.

As the first of four speakers handling topics on Christianity in the nuclear age at URI this year, Dr. Stendahl will address the two religious groups at 7 p.m. He will be the guest at the 4 p.m. Union coffee hour.

The theologian is a member of the editorial committees of the Journal of Biblical Literature and the Harvard Theological Review.

HIGH TEST, LOW TEST, NO TEST

Just the other night I was saying to the little woman, "Do you think the importance of tests in American colleges is being overemphasized?" (The little woman, incidentally, is not, as you might think, my wife. My wife is far from a little woman. She is, in fact, almost seven feet high and heavily muscled. She is a full-blooded Chiricahua Apache and holds the world's hammer-throw record. The little woman I referred to is someone we found crouching under the sofa when we moved into our apartment several years ago, and there she has remained ever since. She never speaks, except to make a kind of guttural clicking sound when she is hungry. Actually, she is not too much fun to have around, but with my wife away at track meets most of the time, at least it gives me somebody to talk to.)

But I digress. "Do you think the importance of tests in American colleges is being overemphasized?" I said the other night to the little woman, and then I said, "Yes, Max, I do think the importance of tests in American colleges is being overemphasized." (As I have explained, the little woman does not speak, so when we have conversations, I am forced to do both parts.)

Actually, she is not too much fun to have around

To get back to tests—sure, they're important, but let's not allow them to get too important. There are, after all, many qualities and talents that simply can't be measured by quizzes. Is it right to penalize a gifted student whose gifts don't happen to be of the academic variety? Like, for instance, Gregor Sigafos?

Gregor, a freshman at the New Hampshire College of Tanning and Belles Lettres, has never passed a single test; yet all who know him agree that he is studded with talent like a ham with cloves. He can, for example, sleep standing up. He can do a perfect imitation of a scarlet tanager. (I don't mean just do the bird calls; I mean he can fly South in the winter.) He can pick up B-B's with his toes. He can say "Toy boat" three times fast. He can build a rude telephone out of two empty Marlboro packs and 100 yards of butcher's twine. (Of all his impressive accomplishments, this last is the one Gregor likes to do best—not building the telephone, but emptying the Marlboro pack. Gregor doesn't just dump the Marlboros out of the pack. He smokes them one at a time—settling back, getting comfortable, savoring each tasty puff. As Gregor often says with a winsome smile, "By George, the makers of Marlboro took their time finding this fine flavor, this great filter, and by George, I'm going to take my time enjoying 'em!")

Well, sir, there you have Gregor Sigafos—artist, humanist, philosopher, Marlboro smoker, and freshman since 1939. Will the world—so desperately in need of talent—ever benefit from Gregor's great gifts? Alas, no. He is in college to stay.

But even more tragic for mankind is the case of Anna Livia Plurabelle. Anna Livia, a classmate of Gregor's, had no talents, no gifts, no brains, no personality. All she had was a knack for taking tests. She would cram like crazy before a test, always get a perfect score, and then promptly forget everything she had learned. Naturally, she graduated with highest honors and degrees by the dozen, but the sad fact is that she left college no more educated, no more prepared to cope with the world, than when she entered. Today, a broken woman, she crouches under my sofa.

And speaking of tests, we makers of Marlboro put our cigarette through an impressive number before we send it to the market. But ultimately, there is only one test that counts: Do YOU like it? We think you will.

Honor With Honor

Honors Day convocation is an established tradition at the University of Rhode Island. Members of the campus community look forward to this day of recognition for those deserving students who have performed noteworthy accomplishments at our university.

The Administrative Council has decided that the all-university Honors Day convocation should be eliminated. We think this is an injustice to the many students at URI who deserve recognition from the entire campus.

The Administrative Council suggests that each of the various colleges hold a convocation among their own undergraduates. We think this plan is highly impractical since recognition cannot be given properly to the groups who deserve it because members of these organizations are not always enrolled in the same college. Also, there is no way of insuring that each of these seven colleges will hold a convocation which will be well attended.

We ask the Administrative Council to seriously reconsider the reinstitution of Honors Day convocation this semester. The consensus opinion of the various representatives from leading organizations on campus seems to beg for this reinstitution.

A Time for Courage

A climactic point has now been reached in the power race between the United States and the Soviet Union. President Kennedy, in his speech to the nation on Monday evening, made it clear to all Americans, as well as to the rest of the world, that the United States, alone and by itself if necessary, would not allow the Soviet Union to become a threat to the Western Hemisphere by building up arms and missile ranges in Cuba. Mr. Kennedy warned that, "The path we have chosen for the present is full of hazards, as all paths are, but is the one most consistent with our character and our courage as a nation and our commitments around the world."

He called on Premier Khrushchev, "... to halt and eliminate this clandestine, reckless, and provocative threat to world peace and to stable relations between our two nations . . ."

The current missiles now in Cuba have enough range, theoretically, to reach any part of our nation and to reach far into Canada and as far south as the Panama Canal. The blockade of Cuba is the only way in which we can prevent that nation's armaments from becoming capable of annihilating the entire western hemisphere.

This blockade was highly praised by all, and in fact many Republicans crossed the political barrier to give our President their full support in his decision. Barry Goldwater, although endorsing the move, called it a week too late.

In the next few days the presidential seven-point program to assure the freedom of the western hemisphere will be tried and tested, and God willing, will prove effective.

This blockade, and its success or failure, could undoubtedly have an effect on our University community and its many young, eligible, non-veteran males. It is our duty therefore to keep abreast of the happenings in this particular crisis and to understand each move that is made.

But most of all it is important that we do NOT take the views of London philosopher, Bertrand Russell, who upon hearing the Presidential speech commented, "What does it matter now, we'll all be dead tomorrow anyhow!"

No Questions Asked

"The raid" Monday night recalls to our minds a recent news story by which officials of another college tore down the barriers that are necessary for such a raid. Coeds at a Clifton training college in Nottingham, England are allowed to have men students visit their rooms until 10 p.m. "with no questions asked." The 300 girls are also allowed to visit men's rooms on the same basis.

The administrators of the college said, "We treat the students as adults and they have reacted responsibly. We don't go in for a system of chaperones because you will not make people moral by giving them a book of regulations. By and large the system works well."

One coed said, "There have been few instances of men staying overtime in girls' rooms, but most of them respect the rules. We know that to treat us like children would result in our behaving like children."

So true, isn't it?

In This Week's Mail

Dear Editor:

It is unfortunate that the University Awards Convocation, commonly known as Honors Convocation, has ceased to exist. Campus recognition of well-deserved awards would certainly be appreciated.

However, perhaps it is not too late to rectify the present situation. Various campus organizations have expressed their desire for this important function to be reinstated. Last week the Student Senate passed a resolution recommending that the administration reestablish the Honors Convocation. This resolution was supported by the IFC, Sachems, Panhel, AWS, The Beacon, and other campus organizations. Is not this sufficient evidence of student support for such a worth while function? Why should these bodies award their honors at small separate meetings?

Let's get together and have an Honors Convocation this year, lest this tradition be lost forever!

Sincerely,
TONY MASSO, President IFC

Dear Editor:

With the growing concern over the role of the student in the total community, we continually become involved with the question of academic freedom. The right of students to carry on unrestricted intellectual investigation is one which NSA will continue to support in the coming years.

Academic freedom to many of us is an abstraction which has never been satisfactorily defined. The meaning of academic freedom to the faculty and administration, as well as to the student, can vary greatly from our personal expectations. The obligation of institutions of higher learning to its donors or owners may place certain restrictions on the student's desire to free inquiry, especially concerning controversial speakers. The concept of in loco parentis continues to complicate the role of non-student forces upon young scholars. The legal interpretations, the educational application of in loco parentis jointly influence the role of the university in our society and therefore demand serious consideration. All the above issues are surely very significant and as students it would certainly be beneficial for us to concern ourselves with these problems.

On November 2 and 3, the New England Region of the USNSA is holding its Fall Regional at the University of Rhode Island. The theme is "Academic Freedom and the College Community" and the program will serve to further educate students on the basic and more subtle issues of academic freedom. Students, faculty members, administrators and other special guests will be working in seminars with students and will also be addressing the Assembly. Working papers will be distributed to prepare participants for an intellectual approach to the concepts of academic freedom.

The need for student insight and understanding of the problems of academic freedom in the college community is very great and is a necessary prerequisite to intelligent student action. In order to meet the challenges of citizenship and to face our responsibilities in the adult world most capably, intellectual curiosity must not be stifled. The barriers that have blocked the path of free intellectual inquiry must be removed.

So that we may all address ourselves to this challenging issue, may I extend an invitation to you and your student body to attend our Fall Regional Convention. I hope you will leave Nov. 2 and 3 open to our conference and I shall be looking forward to seeing you in Kingston.

Best always,
VIC SCHACHTER, Chairman
New England Region

President—Student Senate

The editorial in last week's Beacon, entitled "Time for a Change", was a most interesting and informative bit of prose. The editorial has elicited a good deal of discussion particularly concerning its last paragraph in which the Editor endorsed the present administration's proposed policy of revamping the Senate membership into a smaller and more efficient body. It was most gratifying to realize that The Beacon, the only source of campus news, is at least partially aware of the problems that student government faces.

The editorial stated that reapportionment of the Senate is very important in order to "insure a better and more democratic URI". The above statement is certainly true, as far as it goes, however, its implications bring me to the less positive side of last week's editorial. It seems to me that one of the necessities intrinsic to any democratic institution, be it national government or student government, is that the people who support the institution, in this case the student body, be somewhat aware of the issues involved and somewhat informed.

In stating that the present student government is nothing more than "a rubber stamp of the administration", The Beacon, in my opinion, has shown itself as not being particularly well informed about the activities of our student government. In light of our recent decision, as reported in The Beacon, concerning the Athletic Council and a recommendation to reinstitute Honors Convocation, I would say, without hesitation, that the administration views the Student Senate as anything but a "rubber stamp". Since the present administration has been in office the Student Senate has attempted to deal with such matters as allocation of student tax funds, women's regulations, library hours, constitutions of several important organizations, including the Men's Commuters and Men's Residence Halls. While I would agree that many of the Senate's activities vary in importance I do not consider any of them farcical. May I remind those who are interested in the activities of our senate that our meetings are open to all, especially those who wish to reevaluate the goals of our student government.

Convo Compulsory Under New Program

URI undergraduate students will be required to attend two more convocations this year under a new program of the Administrative Council, according to President Horn.

John F. Quinn, URI dean of students, said all undergraduate students are required to attend and all graduate students and faculty are expected to attend the convocations, one each semester.

The new program eliminates the Honors Day Convocation. President Horn said the Administrative Council has authorized the deans of the individual colleges to arrange for the presentation of scholastic awards in their own colleges. The exact time and place of the fraternity and sorority scholarship awards has not been announced.

The dates and subjects of the two convocations—one this semester and one in the spring—have not yet been decided upon by the administration.

Among the young people being graduated from college in these times, there are some who think and feel—perhaps a little more deeply than the others—about the world we live in, the future we face. They ask, "How can I make my career really meaningful? More than just personally rewarding?"

And many of today's most successful young people are finding a fulfilling answer to these questions as officers on the Aerospace Team... the United States Air Force. They can tell you that no career could better combine the opportunity for achievement—and the deep inner satisfaction of knowing that they are helping preserve the very future of America.

How can you become an Air Force Officer?

If you are a college senior and not currently enrolled in ROTC, Air Force Officer Training School provides an opportunity to qualify for a wide variety of career fields. The graduate of this three-month course receives a commission as a second lieutenant. As the Air Force continues its technological advance, officers with college training will move into positions of increasing importance.

For full information—including the opportunity to earn graduate degrees at Air Force expense—see the Air Force Selection Team when it visits your college, visit your local Air Force Recruiting Office, or write: Air Force Officer Career Information, Dept. SC210, Box 808, New York 1, New York.

The most exciting part in the process of the development of a play into a production is the last week of rehearsals. During this time, the excitement of opening night is felt by the cast, the crews, and the director. After six weeks of rehearsal, this time has come for the University Theatre presentation of "A View From the Bridge."

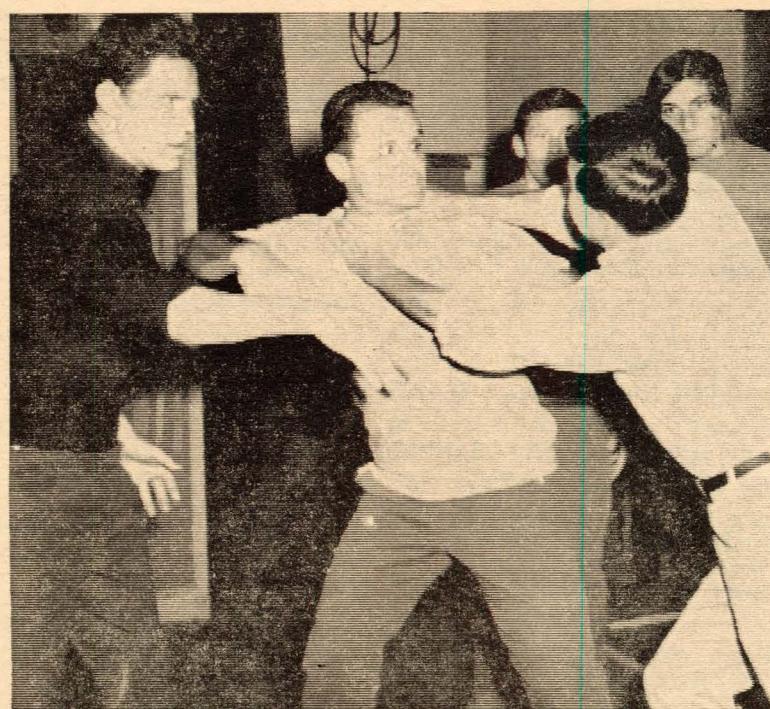

By this time, actors have learned their lines and developed their characters; the set is built; tickets are being sold. Opening night October 25 is on hand. When the curtain rises at 8:30 p.m., the actors will play, for the first time, to an audience that was not involved in the production, an audience that is looking for an exciting evening of theatre.

Preview performances of the play indicate that the audience will not be disappointed. The cast and the director have done a creditable job of transferring the work of a playwright into a live and dramatic art. As in all good plays, there is an abundance of dramatic action; "A View From the Bridge" is no exception.

In the first act, there is one scene with extremely powerful dramatic action. Eddie Carbone, played by Vince Ceglie, decides to point out Rudolpho's, Larry Block, weaknesses by teaching him how to box. The ensuing sparring builds to a climax and Eddie believes that he has made his point. Marco, played by Tony DiRuzzo, counters Eddie's apparent feat of strength by lifting a chair by the leg.

In the second act, the dramatic scenes are more emotionally overwhelming and absorbing. Catherine, played by Hope Elkins, is faced with the problem of believing Eddie's accusations about Rudolpho, or affirming her own love for him. Following this scene, Eddie confronts the two and tries to exert his power over Catherine by kissing her.

The tenseness of this scene is carefully developed, and provides the audience with one of many opportunities to become involved in the world offered to them.

While these scenes are dramatically and physically active, the other scenes are of the same fine quality. As Mr. Alfieri, played by Bill Lacey, says "I could see it coming, step after step, like a dark figure walking down a hall toward a certain door." The audience is able to share in this feeling, and like Mr. Alfieri is unable to stop the course of action.

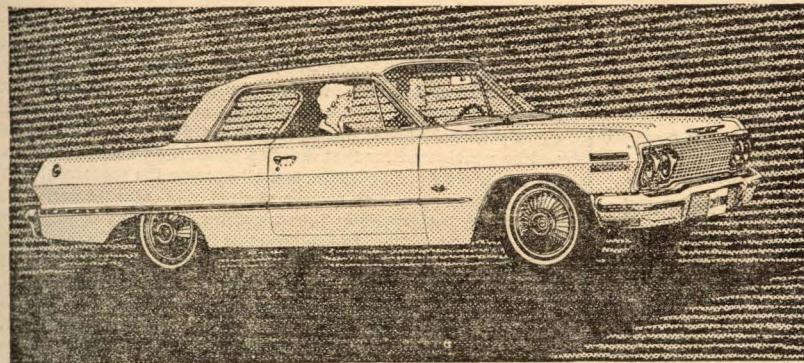

The members of the University community are urged to attend this play, and to become involved in it. As a part of the 14th season of the University Theatre, and as its opening production, "A View From the Bridge" clearly indicates the high calibre of theatre on this campus and it is an experience that should not be missed.

That's when the Linde Company representative will be on campus. He will be interviewing qualified engineering students who feel their future lies in research or applied engineering.

The LINDE Laboratories, for example—at Tonawanda (Buffalo), N.Y., Speedway (Indianapolis), Ind., and Newark, N.J.—provide an unusually stimulating environment for the scientific-minded to grow and develop. The many achievements of LINDE people in research and applied engineering have borne a rich harvest of progress. Over half of LINDE's current sales volume comes from products and facilities that did not even exist 15 years ago.

C. Varsity, Frosh Soundly Defeat The Rhody Harriers

Providence College varsity freshman cross-country teams easily defeated the Ram Harriers held at Kingston Saturday.

Captain Bob Lund of the Rams led first in the varsity race but the only Rhode Island runner across the finish line out of the six finishers. His winning time was 23 minutes, 26 and 2/10. Pete Chamberlain was the Rhody finisher placing seventh followed by John Barlow and Marshall Gerstenblatt. The final score was 20-37 over a 4.8 mile course.

In the freshman meet, six of the P.C. runners tied for fourth place with Bingham of Rhode Island being the first Ramlet to cross the finish line. The distance covered for the freshman meet was 2.9 miles and the winning time was 15:12.4. The final score of this meet was 15-53.

URI GIRLS' SAILING TEAM WINS

The URI girls' sailing team won the URI regatta on Salt Pond last Sunday. Races won for Rhody were by Gail Cotter and Judy Sullivan. Second place went to Northeastern, third place to Connecticut College and fourth place to Pembroke.

Tie For Third

By Tom Johnson

The URI sailing team tied Holy Cross and Yale in a three way split last weekend for third place in the "B" elimination for the Fowle trophy.

The race was held at the U.S. Coast Guard Academy in New London, Connecticut. In URI's first race, Mike Mediros was fouled by Holy Cross thereby losing. Mediros and Joe Frisella then sparked their teams onto an overwhelming victory against Brown, with Mediros getting second and Frisella first.

In the overall standings, Mike Mediros lead the Rams with 48½ points to 47½ for Captain Joe Frisella, 47 for Bob Morton, 22 for Tom Johnson and 11 for John Lyons. Members of the URI crews were Eric Ostenberg, Brian Flannery, Al Benson and Jim Socks.

Ramlets Win

A 50 yard drive in the fourth period sparked the URI Ramlet football team to come from behind and defeat the University of New Hampshire freshman football team 15-8 last Friday for their first victory of the season.

After a third period safety had put New Hampshire in front 8-7, a pass interception near midfield was capped by a victory surge in which John Fahey's one yard plunge put the Rams ahead forever. Fahey also rushed across the point after touchdown.

Highlighted by the passing of quarterback Paul Lavello and the receiving of John Joyce, New Hampshire opened the scoring in the first period on a sixty yard drive. Ed Cummings' placement fell short under the crossbar.

The Rams took the lead in the second period on a first down run to the Wildcat twenty yard line by Mike Miello. After a pass to the twelve, Miello sneaked the last few yards to paydirt. Miello also booted the PAT putting Rhody in front 7-6.

A safety was the last bit of scoring that New Hampshire saw. This came about when Frank Peterson was tackled in his own end zone after intercepting a Wildcat pass.

Harrington Coach

At Fort Dix

Lt. Tom Harrington, former URI cage standout who earned All-New England and All-Yankee Conference during his college career, has been appointed Fort Dix basketball coach for the 1962-1963 season.

Coach Harrington, who now lives in Fall River, Mass., averaged 23 points per game in his junior year at URI, playing the final three games of the season with his wrist in a cast. He holds the Yankee Conference scoring mark of 248 points for a 10 game loop.

Strong UMass Downs UR

Lussier Leads Attack

Caito Scores for URI

By Bill Parrillo

A combination of quarterback Jerry Whelchel and halfback Sam Lussier proved entirely too much for the University of Rhode Island Rams as they fell to a crushing defeat at the hands of the Massachusetts University Redmen 42-8 before 7,444 Homecoming Day fans here Saturday.

Whelchel, the Redmen's fine sophomore quarterback, completed six of ten passes for 111 yards and two touchdowns, one a 59 yarder to all-East end Paul Majeski.

Lussier, meanwhile, proceeded to run wild over the Meade Field turf en route to capturing the day's ground gaining honors with 176 yards in 20 carries while setting up three Redmen touchdowns in addition to scoring himself.

The heavily favored Redmen, coached by Vic Fusia, opened the scoring early in the first period traveling 44 yards in just three plays as Whelchel tossed the final 33 yards to end John Hudson. George Pleau added the first of his six consecutive extra points.

UMass quickly got the ball back again as sophomore Bob Burke recovered a Frank Finizio fumble on the URI 46. The Redmen scored in eight plays with Leo Biron sweeping over his right end from the one.

The Rams' moment of glory came with less than two minutes left in the first quarter as end Paul Boudreau pounced on a Mass. fumble on the Redmen 40.

With sophomore Greg Gutter replacing Mike Pariseau at quarterback, URI went the 40 yards in two plays. After Tony Tetro, the Rams' big fullback, got a first down on the 28, halfback Gerry Caito slanted off right tackle and went the remaining distance for the score with a good block from tackle Al Arbuse at the five.

This was a good piece of running from Rhody's senior scatback as he treaded his way through the UMass secondary expertly picking up blockers as he went along. Rhode Island got the two-point conversion on a pass from Gutter to Boudreau.

The Rams seemed fired up at this point but after an exchange of downs, Whelchel rolled to his right and threw the 59 yard bomb to Majeski and URI was just about finished.

Rhody threatened just as the half ended with Gutter passing to halfback Vic Mancini who carried to the Mass. 18 yard line before being brought down by the last UMass defender between him and the end zone. This was a big play, for if the Rams had scored they would have gone into the locker room just one touchdown behind instead of 21-8.

URI threatened once more early in the third quarter as they ground their way to the Redmen 25 before Pariseau, in for Gutter, fumbled the handoff from center and the ever-present Burke recovered.

This was all the Redmen needed as Whelchel swept five yards for the fourth UMass score and then early in the fourth quarter handed to Lussier and the UMass' senior traveled 12 yards for the tally.

This drive covered 91 yards with the big gainer a 54-yard dash down the right sideline by Biron who was subbing for the injured Loren Flagg, UMass' regular left halfback.

The final score came with the UMass second unit going 68 yards in eight plays—Fred Lewis going the final fifteen on a burst off tackle.

The Rams played the Redmen fairly even for most of the first half but then fell before superior numbers and a superior team. Tetro was the Rams' most effective ball carrier as he amassed 59 yards in 11 tries for an average of about six yards per carry.

Caito played another fine game for Rhode Island scoring Rhody's only six-pointer besides playing a steady defensive game.

The former Mount Pleasant High star has been URI's most consistent long gainer although seeing limited action at the offensive halfback position.

With this victory the Redmen all but clinched the Yankee Conference title having beaten Connecticut last week 16-6. Next week URI travels to Providence and Brown Stadium for its annual duel with the Brown University Bears.

The summary:

Massachusetts (42)

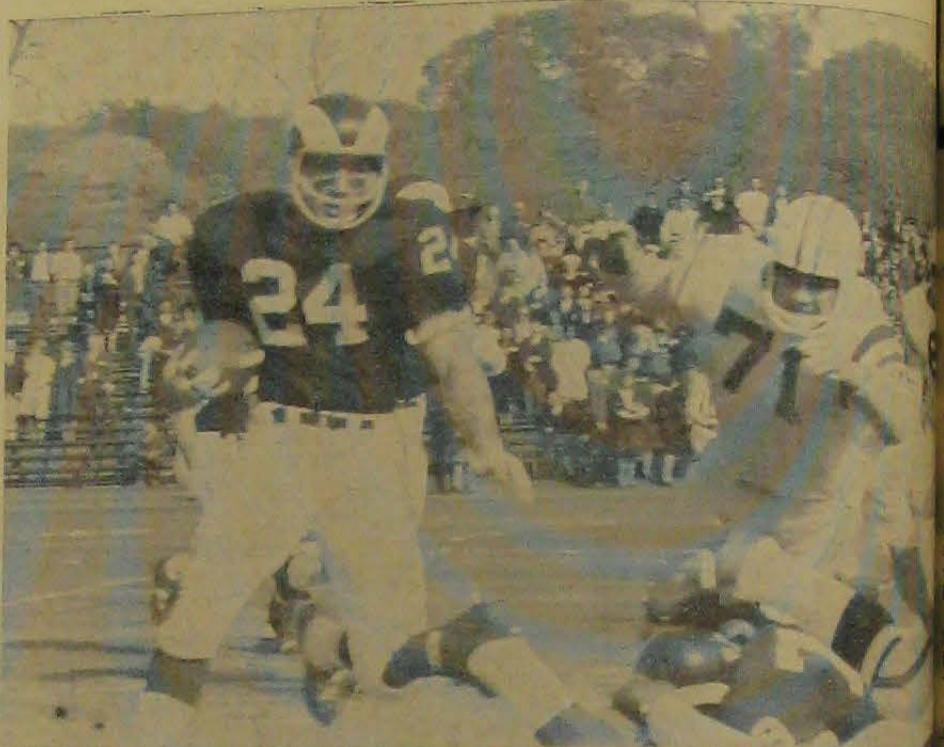

Ends—Majeski, Cavanaugh, Fassell, Egan, Hudson, Bourdelais, Driscoll; Tackles—Tombarelli, Burke, Paradis, Graham, Jordan, Kehoe; Guards—Pietz, Kozaka, Rydor, Tedoldi, Szczepucha, Sikes; Centers—Kirby, Scialdone, Doyle; Backs—Whelchel, Schroeder, Heddle, Biron, Lewis, Warren Perdigao, Ross, Lussier, Kezer, and DeRose.

Rhode Island (8)

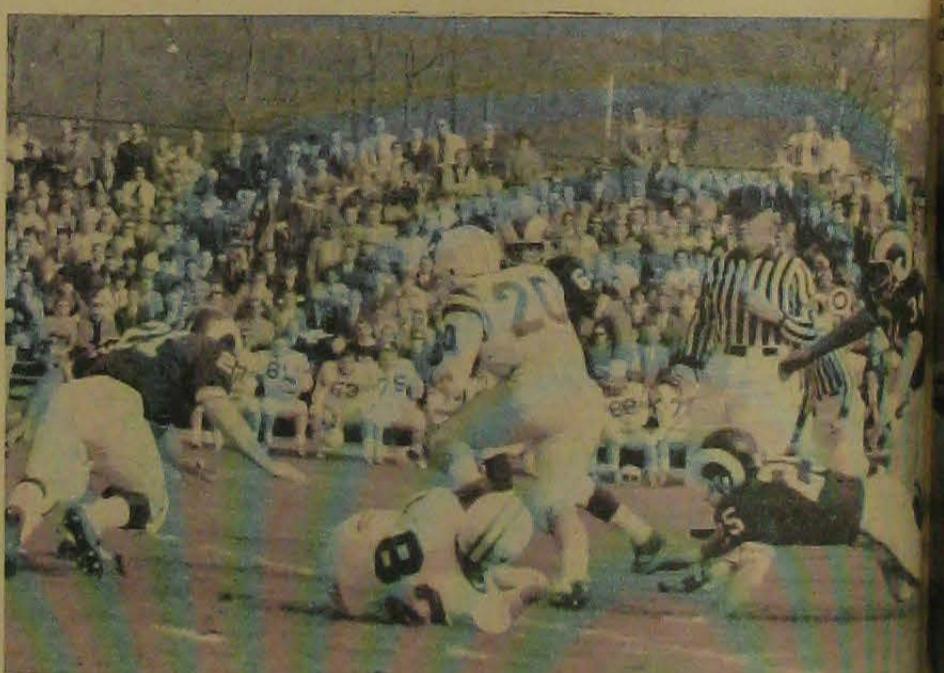

Ends—DeMatteo, Boudreau, Woodbury, Olivera, Callahan, Hunt, Stewart; Tackles—Arbuse, Palmisano, Glaubach, Toscano, Buesing; Guards—Scarpulla, Guimond, Withington, Baker, Goldberg, J. Gutter, Gamble, Halliwell, Fracassa; Centers—Swift, Sellers; Backs—Pariseau, Bokser, G. Gutter, Summers, Faulkner, Mangiameli, Mancini, Jackson, Rodriguez, Kapusinsky, Caito, Abilera, Stipano, Finizio, Tetro and Rickett.

The Line Score:

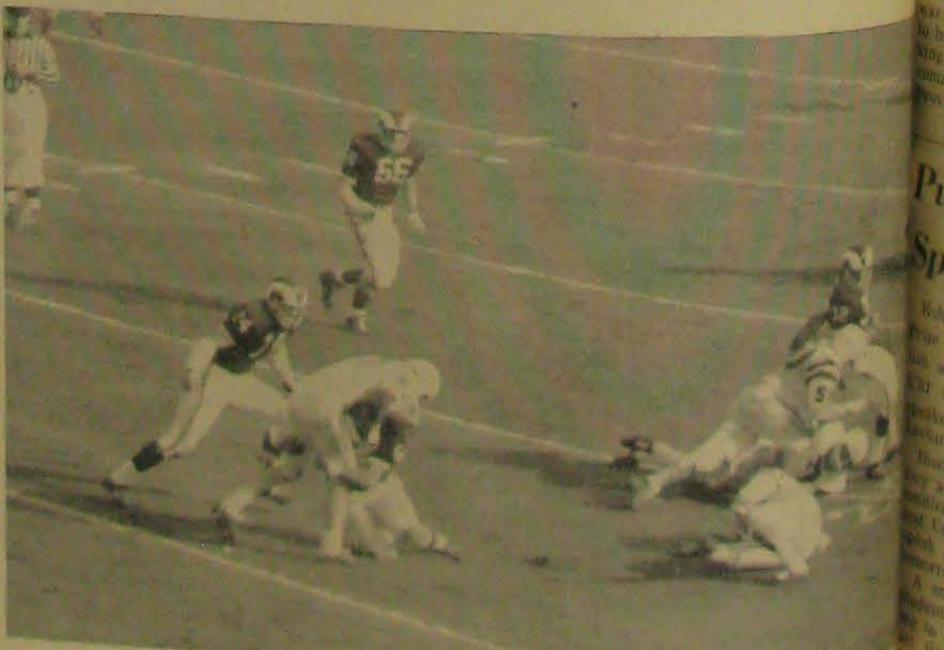

UMass	14	7	7	14	42
URI	8	0	0	0	8

On His Way—Rhode Island halfback Gerry Caito scampered 28 yards for paydirt for the Rhody score of the game against UMass. Caito saw limited action as an offensive halfback and scored his first touchdown of the season.

Massachusetts right halfback Sam Lussier on one of his many romps through the Rhode Island defense picks up more yardage for the Redmen. Lussier scored once, set up three other touchdowns and carried the ball twenty times for a total rushing yardage of 176 yards. It's a good thing for the Yankee Conference that Lussier's a senior.

Sam Lussier again travels for yardage but this time is brought down on the URI 24 yard line by Chuck Scarpulla. Marv Glaubach and John Gutter watch the action as Frank Finizio and Gerry Caito are taken out of the play.

Karboski Wins in ECAC Golf

By Bill Proulx

Led by Sophomore Charlie Karboski, the URI golf team finished second last Saturday in a field of 57 college teams participating in the third annual East Coast Athletic Conference Tournament. Competition was held at the Beth Page State Park in Farmingdale, New York. The team was represented by Captain Joe Porter, Ken Conti, Dennis Quine and Karboski.

The tournament, which began two weeks ago in four different areas, saw Army edge Rhody, the New England Champions, by one stroke, 221-222, in Saturday's finals.

URI's biggest consolation for the narrow defeat was the stunning victory by the sophomore, Karboski, whose 40-35-75 score was the best individual total of the 52 players who had qualified for the individual championship.

Eight teams had qualified for the championship finals. They were: Army, Buffalo, Dartmouth, Navy, Georgetown, Princeton, Syracuse, and Rhode Island.

Coach Paul Cieurzo who coached last year's squad to a second place finish in the New England tournament in the spring, seemed quite pleased with the results of the ECAC Tournament. According to Mr. Cieurzo, more than 200 college golfers took part in the competition. There were actually 120 schools eligible to enter the tournament.

The high finish by the Rams capped a successful autumn schedule in which the squad won three matches and lost one.

Sam Lussier again travels for yardage but this time is brought down on the URI 24 yard line by Chuck Scarpulla. Marv Glaubach and John Gutter watch the action as Frank Finizio and Gerry Caito are taken out of the play.
